

Stories of Lupus (Video Tape: 27 Minutes) (VHS)

1 Video Tape, 1999. An estimated two million Americans are currently living with systemic lupus erythematosus, a chronic, potentially devastating disease in which the immune system turns against the body's own cells and tissues, causing inflammation and tissue damage. It commonly strikes between the ages of 18 and 45, and 90% of those diagnosed are women. It is three times more common among African American women than among Caucasians. Lupus is difficult to diagnose, there is no cure, and many treatments can cause serious side effects, as well as a host of long-term complications. Confronting their own recent diagnoses with lupus, the filmmakers decided to go on the road, in honor of broadcast personality Charles Kuralt, who had died of lupus not long before. Travelling to eight cities, they sought out others who are enduring the precarious roller coaster of symptoms, treatment, flare-ups and recoveries characteristic of this complex, mysterious, and often life-threatening autoimmune disease.
