These include lack of energy, poor concentration, difficulty sleeping, lack of libido, headaches, and an unstable emotional state, just to name a few. These ailments youre experiencing can often be caused by ongoing stress in your life that has gradually caused a blockage in the flow of energy throughout your body, which can often result in a general lack of health and emotional well-being. You can compare this to a blood clot interfering with someones blood flow, only this particular clot interferes with your energy flow - you can think of it as an energy clot that you must get rid of in order to experience optimal health and well-being. ???
