

Presidential Addresses and State Papers (1910) Volume: 17

It is a peculiar pleasure to me to greet you here this evening on behalf of the National Government; and in greeting all of you let me say how particularly pleased I am that we should have the Governors of the great States of Virginia and Maryland with us this evening. Every public official who has a proper sense of the obligations of his oath of office, whatever party he may belong to, once that he is in office must feel that he is the servant of all the people. That is true of all public officials, but perhaps it is in a special sense true of the Secretary of State of the Union, for our party lines stop at the water's edge. The minute that we get beyond the limits of our own country we are, all of us, American and nothing else. It is in the fullest recognition of that spirit that Secretary Root acts and has always acted.
